Tinley Minister And Wife Observe 40th Anniversary

The fortieth wedding anniversary of Rev. and Mrs. Frank J. Anderson, pastor of the Tinley Park and Mokena Methodist churches was observed with a fitting service held in the Tinley Park church last Friday evening. About 200 were in attendance, who came from the surrounding communities and former charges of Rev. Anderson.

Rev. Roy Crocker preached the sermon and the pastor's nephew was in charge of the program.

As the church organist Miss Gertrude Lucius played Lohengrin's wedding march, the visiting pastors, Rev. and Mrs. L. E. Winters, of Frankfort, Rev. and Mrs. M. Mumford of Mokena and Rev. L. E. Weinreich of Walnut, Ill., and Rev. and Mrs. Anderson with about a dozen couples who were married forty years or more, proceeded down the aisle to their place in the front.

The church was prettily decorated, and the Woman's Society of Christian Service of Mokena and Tinley Park presented a beautiful basket of gladiolus to the honored couple.

A collection was taken at the close of the service and amounted to $92.00 which was given to the work in Chicago of homeless children. The Andersons daughter is a social worker in this line in Chicago.

A reception was held in the dining room of the church following the service with a special table for all the honored guests. A large wedding cake was provided over by Mrs. Hugo Nefthammer of Mokena and Mrs. Brandau of Tinley Park. The presidents of the two churches WSCS, Mrs. Wm. Bradley of Mokena and Mrs. Irvin Stover of Tinley Park, poured.

Rev. and Mrs. Anderson are most grateful to all who helped to make this day such a happy one, for the many lovely cards received, and flowers, all which they accept in real humility, feeling their unworthiness but trusting in the manifold and great mercies of God.

FRIGIDAIRE HAS INCREASED NUMBER OF REFRIGERATORS AVAILABLE

"Frigidaire, the World's largest manufacturer of refrigerators, now has an increasing number of refrigerators available to the public," said Clarence Beagley, the local Frigidaire dealer. "Construction on the first model began in July of this year and the finished products were temporarily frozen in a government stockpile however, the restriction on the sale of refrigerators to the public has been lifted and Frigidaire are now available for civilian consumption."

Mr. Beagley was discussing the features of the Frigidaire, "They have all of the prewar features and quality developed by Frigidaire. The permanently sealed in steel rotary Meter-Miser Lifetime Porcelain Finish, The Quick-ube Ice Tray, and many other exclusive Frigidaire features are again present in these refrigerators," added Mr. Beagley. "The five year protection plan on sealed in mechanism is again proof that Frigidaire's workmanship and the quality of its products are among the best available."

"When Frigidaire's first war contract construction of .50 caliber machine guns expired in July of 1945, Frigidaire with the authority of the War Production Board, began its first production of refrigerators since April 30, 1942. Following the cancellation of all war contracts at the Dayton, Ohio plants on VJ day, the rapid reversion to civilian output in the other sections of the mammoth Ohio plants and the availability of the necessary materials has enabled Frigidaire to produce a much greater number of refrigerators than was at first anticipated," continued Mr. Beagley.

"Though production on refrigerators is exceeding the most optimistic wartime predictions there are still not enough Frigidaire to meet the ever increasing demand, but officials at the Frigidaire's plants believe a daily production of several thousand refrigerators is possible in the near future," concluded Mr. Beagley.

NEW LENOX INCORPORATING COMMITTEE PLANS PROGRAM

A number of discussion meetings are being planned for this winter by the New Lenox Incorporating Committee. The programs are to be informational and the subjects for the discussions will be chosen by the people within the area. Here's how. Sometime within the next few weeks a two way card will be mailed to all residents. It will have a list of some of the more usual subjects and a place for writing a question of special interest to anyone. Most people will find their questions listed and can make their selection by merely putting an X before it and then mailing the card to the committee.

A number of discussion meetings are necessary so that everyone will be well informed on the subject of incorporation. Too many thought last May 5 that they were voting for sewers and water. They didn't know that they were voting on the question of home rule.

There is no question that everyone is 100 percent for the right to decide matters in his own community. But how many know the advantages of incorporation? And how many know that it is the smartest thing they can do to protect their investments? If you want to keep New Lenox like it is then give it home rule.

Metal That Never Tires

As a substitute for war-scarce tin, beryllium with copper and with other metals forms hard, extremely strong alloys for tools and dies. Because it gives off no sparks, it makes good safety tools and surfaces for workers in factories handling explosives. Outstanding is beryllium's use in aircraft instruments. A combination of 2 per cent beryllium and 98 per cent copper in precision springs has the virtue of not weakening, no matter how often the springs may be stretched. Hence beryllium's reputation as "the metal that never tires."

Textile Finishes Remain

Textile chemists are creating new fibers and new finishes to go on old fibers. Formerly the starches, clays, soaps and metallic compounds used for surface finishes in muslins, percales, organdies, damasks and cretonnes and also the crispness produced by oils and gums in chintzes disappeared after a few washings; but the coming new finishes for these fabrics will remain almost indefinitely.

Check Cabbage Worms

Cabbage worms and cabbage loopers must be checked immediately. Up until the cabbage heads are four inches through, use paris green, calcium arsenate, and eryolite. As your cabbage gets to eating size, change to a rotenone-bearing dust. Collards, brussels sprouts, cauliflower, broccoli, and kale should be protected with the same dusts and sprays.

Neighbors Will Appreciate Garden Gift Basket (See Recipes Below)

Garden Gifts

Now that we once more have peace all over the world, we all ought to start our good neighbor policy right at home. Lots of little friendly gestures that mean so much have been forgotten during the war, but they should be reinstated.

Something that all of us with a garden can do is to share with a neighbor. There are probably lots of things that you yourself cannot use that would be welcomed by a neighbor. Send a basket of garden vegetables or fruit, all dressed up with fancy wrappings and ribbon, and see what a friend you can make. Incidentally, include a lemon or two to make it handy for the home-maker to season either fruit or vegetables.

Another gift that will be welcome is a set of your favorite recipes, with or without a basket of garden produce. Every woman has a few choice dishes which her friends have asked for, and it makes for more friendliness to be generous with the instructions.

Here are some brief suggestions which I'd like to pass on to you, particularly for vegetables:

If you find yourself short of salad dressings for a tossed salad, sprinkle 2 or 3 tablespoons of oil on the individual salad then squeeze lemon juice generously over this, salt to taste and toss the salad lightly.

To make a good, old-fashioned cole slaw, add the following amounts to 2½ cups of shredded cabbage: ¾ teaspoon salt, 1½ tablespoons sugar, 6 tablespoons coffee cream, and 3 tablespoons of lemon juice.

In making pickled beets, cook the beets first, then slice and cover with equal parts of lemon juice and water. Add sugar to taste, and slices of sweet onion, if desired.

Now that fall has come, we can start turning our attention to heartier foods again. Cabbage is a good vegetable to use because it is coming in season:

Stuffed Cabbage.

(Serves 5 to 6)

3 tablespoons uncooked rice
1 pound ground beef
1 egg well-beaten
2 tablespoons minced onion
2 teaspoons salt
¾ teaspoon pepper
8 medium to large cabbage leaves

Lynn Says:

Refrigerate Your Foods: Refrigeration is necessary to most foods not only to preserve their appearance and palatability, but also to prevent food spoilage.

In most cases, temperatures of 40 degrees will take care of the situation. This temperature is best maintained.

Meat, milk, vegetables and fruits are extremely perishable and should be refrigerated immediately. Root vegetables do not need as low as 40 degrees and may be kept out of the ice box. Bananas need never be refrigerated.

Keep all foods covered except meat. Cover it lightly with waxed paper. Fruit needs chilling, not freezing.

The crisper or open dish or even paper cartons are excellent for keeping eggs in the refrigerator.

Meat needs the coolest place in the refrigerator—right under the freezing unit. Bacteria multiply very rapidly unless it is well protected.

Lynn Chambers' Menu.

Swiss Steak with Gravy
Browned Potatoes
Buttered Cabbage
Fresh Fruit Salad
Whole Wheat Bread
Baked Apples

2½ cups canned tomatoes
1 tablespoon flour
4 tablespoons sour cream
½ teaspoon salt

Cook rice in boiling salted water until tender. Drain and rinse. Mix rice, ground meat, egg, onion, salt and pepper. Steam cabbage leaves in ½ cup water for 10 minutes. Fill leaves with meat mixture (½ cup to each leaf), fold leaf over meat and fasten with a toothpick. Arrange in saucepan, add tomatoes, bring to a boil, then simmer gently for 1½ hours. Mix flour, sour cream and ½ teaspoon salt to a paste; remove cabbage balls to a dish and stir sour cream and flour mixture into tomatoes. Bring to a boil quickly and pour over cabbage rolls and serve.

A favorite pie for fall, and incidentally a nice recipe to tuck into one of those gift baskets, is one for this unusual Green Tomato Mincemeat Pie. It's spicy and fragrant, bound to please:

Green Tomato Mincemeat Pie.
1 peck of green tomatoes
1 quart sliced apples, fresh or dried
1 pound seedless raisins
Salt

1 pound suet, chopped
Cinnamon, nutmeg, cloves
2½ pounds brown sugar
3 lemons
Water

Wash tomatoes. Cut in small pieces. Sprinkle with salt. Let stand overnight. Drain. Add sufficient water to prevent sticking. Cook 30 minutes, stirring frequently. Add lemon juice, grated rind and white of 1 lemon, cut in small pieces. Add apples, suet, raisins and sugar. Add spices to taste and a few grains of salt. Simmer slowly, stirring frequently, until tomatoes and apples are tender and flavors are blended. Pack in freshly sterilized jar and seal. Line a 9-inch pie pan with pastry and fill with 2½ cups of the tomato mincemeat mixture. Cover top with pastry, flute edges and bake in a 425-degree oven for 35 to 40 minutes.

Two vegetables which we miss during the other seasons are ready to take their bows now. You will like both green tomatoes and eggplant prepared in this fashion:

Stuffed Eggplant.

(Serves 6)

1 eggplant
½ teaspoon pepper
½ tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons cracker crumbs
½ teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons milk
½ cup grated cheese

Eggplant may be cooked in boiling water for five minutes before scooping out. Cut slice from top or cut in half lengthwise. Remove pulp and mix with other ingredients. Refill shells and cover with cheese and crumbs and bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven for 30 minutes.

Green Tomato Fritters.

(Serves 6)

1½ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¾ cup milk
¼ teaspoon salt
1 egg, well beaten
6 green tomatoes, sliced ½ inch thick

Beat egg, add to milk. Mix flour, baking powder and salt. Combine with liquid and mix to a smooth batter. Sprinkle sliced tomatoes with salt and pepper. Drain on absorbent paper and dip in batter. Fry in deep fat until golden brown. Other raw vegetables may be prepared in this way.

TEMPERANCE BEGINS AT HOME

LESSON TEXT—II Timothy 1:1-6; 3:14-15;
Titus 2:1-4, 11, 12.
GOLDEN TEXT—As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord.—Joshua 24:15.

The influence of the home on the character of a child is the strongest factor in the development of high and holy standards in the life of the man and woman. "Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it" (Prov. 22:6).

Emphasis is placed on temperance in our lesson, and it is clear that in the home real temperance principles may be built into the thinking of boys and girls. It is not easy for a young person who has been brought up right on this matter to go astray, no matter how severe the temptation.

I. Our Family Is God's Gift (II Tim. 1:1-5).

Paul, the apostle of Christ, addressed his son in the faith, Timothy, with affection and appreciation. He knew the good which was in this fine young man and saw the possibilities for service for God.

He knew that as the background of that faith, there was a godly line of ancestors, those with an "unfeigned faith." This young man, so precious to Paul and so successful in the ministry, owed a deep and abiding debt of gratitude to these godly women who had directed his steps aright, who had instructed and encouraged him in the right way.

Let those who are young recognize parents and grandparents who admonish and instruct them as God's gift. Let them not regard them as those who would restrict or restrain them unduly, but who for their own good and the glory of the Lord teach them the way to God.

II. Our Faith in God's Guidance (II Tim. 1:6; 3:14, 15).

The gift of God for preaching which Timothy had was recognized by the church, and he was sent forth to proclaim the gospel. But alas! the burdens of life and the pressure of service cause a man to forget or neglect his calling so there comes often the need of stirring up the gift of the Lord.

God gave it. He will bless us as we use it to its fullest possible extent. He wants us too, to stir it up—this blessed, divine gift and calling.

The admonition (v. 14) is to "continue" in that which was learned, to remain true to the Word of God. We show our faith in His guiding hand, as we resist by His grace, the ever-present temptation to get away from the only true foundation of a life of usefulness and joy.

What we have learned as children we should hold fast in spite of all the devices of Satan and every weakness of the flesh. Stand fast in the faith!

III. Our Fellowship in God's Gospel (Titus 2:1-4).

Old and young are to be united in a great communion of believers proclaiming the gospel of God's grace by a living testimony, by a life devoted to the things of God.

Sound doctrine is the only source of sound living. To be "sound" means to be healthy, vigorous, free from defects, suited to a purpose. That means that everyday Christian living must express the vigorous soundness of the gospel.

Men and women are to be "temperate," not given to excess, and particularly in mind here is the use of intoxicants. To be temperate in such a day and land as ours can mean only one thing, and that is to abstain altogether. Christians ought to keep entirely away from intoxicants, and that includes beer and wine.

There is a positive side to the admonition, for soundness of life and faith shows itself in holy living, love, patience, the teaching of God's Word, and in fine fellowship among the people of God. We need to stress that side of the teaching of this passage.

IV. Our Faithfulness by God's Grace (vv. 11, 12).

God's grace has brought salvation to man through Jesus Christ and His atoning death on the cross. That grace calls for and calls forth from the believer a renouncing of that which is ungodly and lustful (and you can put intoxicants right in there!) and a determination to live right in faithful devotion to God.

That brings about right relationships to self, to others, and to God. The Christian is sober and self-controlled as to anything which could "intoxicate" him, whether it be liquor, or lust, or pride, or any other such thing. He also shows that grace of God before men in a life of righteousness. Then he finds his true place in a reverent devotion to God which makes him a worshiper "in spirit and in truth: for the Father seeketh such to worship him" (John 4:23).

Faithfulness to our Lord will count more than our words in the great battle against intemperance. Let us stand true to Him and keep our witness clear and strong!

Rotenone Imports
In 1931, the first year in which this country imported rotenone roots in commercial quantities, our imports were only 8,400 pounds. By 1940 they had expanded to 6,500,000 pounds. Rotenone is used in insecticides.

Blooming Hats
It took clothes-ration points for an Australian girl to buy a hat. Knowing this, United States soldiers often brought to their dates special-made headpieces of fresh flowers. This custom, started by our troops, became the rage in hat-scarce Australia.

Progressive Century
The barometer and the thermometer were developed in the 17th century.

Heating Safety
One of the most notable innovations in safe heating is the wet base boiler in which water circulates under the ash pit. The fact that the boiler can be placed on a combustible floor is of interest in connection with the trend toward the basement-less house. In such houses it is often desirable to install the boiler on a wooden floor in a utility room or kitchen. Other safety features of modern boilers are foot-treadle door openers, ball-shaped, air-cooled handles and side shakers, making it easier to open and close doors.

Lucky Stones
Emeralds were once believed to be beneficial to the eyes and amethysts were thought to prevent drunkenness, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica. The belief in lucky stones still exists.

Bath Banishes Blues
According to etymologists, the English word "bath" comes indirectly from a Greek word meaning "to drive sadness from the mind." Which goes to prove again that the classic Greeks were a modern people and that they knew the full value of bodily cleansing. Bathe frequently and thoroughly, and thus "drive sadness from the mind."

Plan Baths
If the man of the house has been accustomed to taking his daily shower in the morning, reserve this time for him. The children might bathe in the evening, allotting the time according to their ages and when they go to bed. The younger children might be bathed before dinner, older children later. Plan your own bath for whichever hour will give you the most relaxation.

Eggs Nutritious
Eggs help keep the body healthy. They make strong muscles and red blood. A child needs four to five eggs a week. An older person needs three to five eggs a week. Eggs may be eaten plain, or mixed in other foods.

Whip Soap Flakes
Whip your soap flakes in a little hot water with an egg beater and you will need fewer flakes and get better results.

SNAPPY FACTS about RUBBER

Largest inflatable rubber units ever made (200 ft. long and 25 ft. high) were the pneumatic breakwaters used to control the waves on the beaches during the Normandy invasion.

The various raw materials used in the manufacture of tires came from 35 different states.

35.7 pounds of synthetic rubber are used up in driving a car 20,000 miles at 35 m. p. h. 61 pounds are used while driving the same number of miles at 50 m. p. h.

Sponge rubber, a century-old discovery, may become a hundred-million-dollar industry.

AN INNER SANCTUM MYSTERY

STARRING ARAB AND ANDY BLAKE WNU FEATURES

THE STORY THUS FAR: Lt. Andy Blake, assigned to Operations, was agreeably surprised by the arrival of his wife, Arab, who announced she had taken a job in Washington with Ordnance, to aid in the war effort. They left the office to look for a room for Arab. Arab told Andy that thoughtless people talked too much about their war work and plans. While on the bus, she decided to walk around and take down in shorthand the various war conversations she overheard. While in the act, she was spotted, and the word "SPY," first a whisper, developed into an angry cry. Andy pulled the stop cord in order that they could both jump off. Arab started running with Andy fast after her.

CHAPTER II

There was only one word needed. A small, hissing word. My eardrums ached as I waited for it. Then it came.

"Spy."

It broke the ice jam in my blood. My legs and arms came alive, tingling. I started wrestling forward through the crowd. White faces turned. Eyes stared blankly. They didn't want to let anybody through. They were already jamming toward the front of the bus. Moving forward under the sting of one word. It had started in the back of the bus and was working forward like slow poison.

"Spy... Spy..."

They let me move grudgingly. It wasn't for me that they moved aside, though. They moved a little for the gleam of shoulder bars and buttons and the wide-winged eagle on my cap. I got to the exit at the middle of the bus. That was the limit. Beyond that point the jam was solid. I yelled at the nearest people and they didn't even turn. They shoved back blindly, not looking around, when I tried to drive through.

I grabbed the handrail on each side of the exit and hoisted myself up. I caught a flash of Arab's pale face. She was jammed against the front entrance. The people right around her didn't know yet what was happening. They had turned to push back resentfully at the mob. But Arab knew. She was clawing at the tight folds of the door.

"Spy... spy... spy... spy..."

The word was striking at her like a snake. I yelled at people to stop it, but not a back turned. It would take a half-dozen cops to halt them now. I put all my lung power into a yell.

"Arab! When the door opens, run!"

Then I grabbed the stop-signal cord and hung on it. Ordinarily the driver would have waited until the next loading station... and that might have been too late, for Arab. But he must have known something was wrong, without quite knowing what. As I hung on the cord, praying, the bus suddenly swung to the curb and halted.

I jumped on the step which automatically opens the center doors. They flapped back. I leaped out, skidded once, and swung toward the front entrance. The front doors folded back and Arab slipped out while I was still three strides away.

"Run!" I yelled.

She jumped to the sidewalk and I faked a dive at her and clipped the first two men who spilled out after her. My nose left a rut in the street, but it seemed worth while. It gave Arab a few seconds start into the blackness of a private driveway. I scrambled to my feet and followed. Fifty yards up the curving drive of the big estate I saw a white blur. When Arab runs she doesn't flap her feet the way most girls do, like a hen trying out clipped wings.

I pounded up the drive well in advance of the others. But was I really ahead of the rest? Once or twice the white blur of Arab's raincoat seemed to be blacked out by another figure. Arab flashed past a lighted ground-floor window of the big house, and a moment later I thought I saw a shadow flick across the same light. A shadow as squat as a tub. It was nonsense, of course. My imagination was pulling things out of hats. Tubs can't move that fast.

Then, in a split second, my foot hit something and a fuse blew in my head and I plunged down into ringing blackness.

I opened my eyes and peered up at a lighted room. A circle of faces hung above me like a Halloween group bobbing for apples.

"How do you feel, Lieutenant?" somebody asked.

"Swell," I said. "Is there an undertaker in the house?"

"Oh, Andy," a familiar voice sobbed. "I thought you were dead."

"What made you change your mind?" I said peevishly. "What?"

I broke off suddenly and stared around at the circle. Here was Arab with a half dozen of the people who had been ready to get rough with her not long ago. "What happened to the girl?" I asked.

"The girl in the white raincoat and the black felt hat?" Arab asked in a clear voice. "She got away."

"We called the police," somebody added. "They'll get her."

"If they do get her," I growled, "I'll be happy to testify for the prosecution. What happened to me?"

A man said, "You tripped over something, Lieutenant. Your head hit the stump of a tree. We found you crumpled right up against the stump, and carried you into the house here."

"An... an ambulance is coming from Walter Reed," Arab sniffed. Colonel Parker came in first, shook my hand, and said, "Glad you came through all right, Blake. Got to ask you some questions. These gentlemen"—he sketched an introduction—"need information. Know you need rest, but this can't wait. Feel up to it?"

"Yes, sir," I said faintly. It appeared that I was entertaining the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Counter-Intelligence, the Military District of Washington, the Provost Marshal General's Office, and other serious-minded organizations. "Yes, sir," I said, "but first I ought to tell you—"

"Save your strength, Blake. Let them ask the questions first."

Another colonel grumbled. "Can't make head or tail of the stories of the people on the bus. One says she was short, another has her nearly six feet tall. She has red, brunette, and platinum-blond hair, is knock-kneed, has beautiful legs... you see what we're up against."

"Sir," I groaned, "it's a long story. She—"

"Let's have a description."

"Sir, I wish you'd let me go at this my own way. She—"

"Blake!"

I babbled, "She has blonde hair, shoulder-length, height five feet seven and one half with high heels, weight one-ten, blue eyes, nicely cut cameo features, age twenty-three...

I saw a white blur.

Somebody whistled softly.

"Are you sure of all this?" a civilian asked.

"Yes, sir."

Somebody else said, "Nope, too good to be true. They don't come like that. The last female spy I saw had hair like a broomstick and must have topped one-sixty. Athletic girl. Went in for weight-lifting."

Colonel Parker said nervously, "Blake, you don't happen to know this girl's name, do you?"

I sandwiched a gulp between a yes-sir.

"What is it?"

I closed my eyes and said, "Mrs. Arabella Reynolds Blake." There was silence for a few moments. It was so quiet you could have heard a lieutenant drop, if I hadn't been lying down already.

"Tell it your own way," my chief muttered.

My own way would have been by long-distance telephone, but I went ahead, anyway. After I finished, one officer said, "Well, cross that one off the books as a wasted evening."

After he left I decided that things weren't so bad. They couldn't really put a black mark on my 201 file in the Adjutant General's Office for the night's work. And Arab ought to be grateful. After all, I had helped her out of a nasty spot in the bus.

Arab phoned that she would bring the car out for me whenever I was ready to leave, and I said not to worry because the Army nurses were very lovely. After that Arab called every hour and the hospital authorities got tired of it and decided in the late afternoon that I could be returned to duty.

Arab got out to the hospital without delay, and I coaxed the prettiest nurse to escort me to the door and even let me lean weakly on her. This had the proper sobering effect on Arab for at least five minutes. Then, as we drove away, she started fighting the war her way again.

"You're just bitter," I said, "because nobody consulted you before starting the war."

"Why, Andy, do you really think I'm going to keep quiet after the way those people were talking last night on the bus? I'm going to do something about it whenever I get a chance."

"Last night in the hospital a full colonel said you ought to be spanked."

She murmured, "I do love you terribly, Andy, and I'm ever so grateful to you for last night, and I'll be quiet from now on and not get us into any more trouble."

"I hope so."

"I've already been quiet since last night, and that's a whole twenty-four hours."

"What have you been doing?"

"Finding a room."

"Swell. Let's hear about it."

"It's out on Northwest Q Street in a big old house with lots of space around it. About sixteen girls live in it and it's owned by a beautiful refugee Frenchwoman and some of the girls are the cutest things and I just know they're all going to make passes at you and—"

"Whoa," I said. "You're peddling this too hard. Now tell me what it is I'm not going to like about the place."

"Well, it's really a very little thing."

"I'll bet. So are thirty-caliber bullets."

"It's just that Mrs. Fielding—she married an American—won't rent rooms to married women. That is, not married women who are working at it. She said that the first thing. She says married women who really love their husbands are always either moping around and depressing her or else rushing off in a few months to wherever their husbands are and there she is with the trouble of finding the right girl for the room again. So because I'm signed up with civil service under my maiden name of Arabella Reynolds she sort of got the idea that I'm not married and let me have the room."

"That isn't like you, Butch. You know we'll be finding an apartment and leaving her flat."

We had dinner downtown, and Arab mentioned that she hadn't recovered her white raincoat and hat after dropping them last night. We drove to the scene of the chase and spent half an hour poking through the shrubbery with a flashlight. It was no use. Either Arab had forgotten where she dropped the articles or somebody had walked off with them.

I switched on the overhead light and drove on slowly and listened to Arab deciphering her shorthand. She had filled half a dozen pages. Some of the quotes started out as if they might be important but then turned into meaningless chatter about how the supervisor said this and Edith snapped right back at her.

There were perhaps four remarks of the loose-talk type, but they weren't dangerous to anybody except a few thousand guys who were off fighting Germans and Japs, or getting ready to. There wasn't a remark which might have made Arab dangerous to somebody on the bus.

"Did you find anything in that?" she asked, closing the notebook.

"You missed it," I complained.

"It must have been said while you were listening and you missed it."

"We can't do anything about it, can we, Andy?"

"Let me think a minute," I said.

An idea was fluttering in my head. It would brush the edge of my thoughts like a moth and then vanish. I didn't know what the idea was but I knew I needed it. Badly.

"We're here," Arab announced suddenly, and I pulled over to the curb and got my first look at the house on Q Street.

It was in a rather desolate section quite a distance beyond Georgetown. Only two other houses were in the section. Arab's place was planted on several acres of unkempt grounds. It had been built maybe thirty years ago by someone who had hoped it would look like an embassy. It was a three-story mansard-roof type, with a tiny portico and a couple of pillars. The pillars were oversize for the house. They stuck out like buck teeth.

"What a comedown," I said.

"Hmmm?"

"This house. It starts off thirty years ago in the society columns and ends up in the rooms-for-rent section. You said you saw it advertised today, didn't you?"

"Oh, yes. In the Washington Post."

The mothlike idea fluttered back into my head, and settled down. I asked in a carefully restrained tone, "What's the number of this place?"

"Fifty-seven ninety-seven Q Street, Northwest."

I got out a cigarette and struck a match. My hand trembled so that the match went out. I tried to strike another and merely crumpled it.

"You're awfully nervous," Arab said.

"I read the Post this morning, too."

"Did you? But what's that got to do with—"

"I had plenty of time," I said. "I read the rooms-for-rent section. There wasn't any ad for this house."

"I—I must have read it in another paper."

I grabbed her shoulders and shook her and shouted, "You read it in your notebook! That thug on the bus dropped a remark that brought you to this house! And you skipped it when you read me your notes. You utter damned fool, are you trying to get yourself killed?"

Cotton Damage
Most of the ginning damage to cotton occurs during the first three to four weeks of the ginning season. The cotton is "green" and damp because of the high moisture content of the seed.

Cotton Pickers
The leaves of the cotton must be removed by chemicals in order for picking machines to do the best jobs. Cotton is easily stained by green leaves and this makes dyeing of the cotton difficult.

Garden Superstition
As late as 1740, people in New England thought potatoes would shorten men's lives and make them unhealthy.

Towel Laundering
Increased use of towels means more frequent laundering. Hang towels straight on the line rather than by a corner. After using bath towels, spread them out on racks to dry instead of folding or bunching them. Never pile wet towels on the floor or in a laundry bag. Soggy towels can mildew overnight in hot weather.

Palm Wine
Fermented palm wine is often used as a yeast substitute for bread making in Liberia.

Canned Carp
A Minnesota manufacturer is about to can carp and market it, grated, tuna-style, under the name of "Lakefish."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, October 21, was:

"DOCTRINE OF ATONEMENT"

The Golden Text was:

"The Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many" (Mark 10: 45).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible:

"And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father), full of grace and truth. John bare witness of him and cried, saying, This was he of whom I spake, He that cometh after me is preferred before me: for he was before me. . . . The next day John seeth Jesus coming unto him, and saith, Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world" (John 1: 14, 15, 29).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy:

"Jesus mapped out the path for others. He unveiled the Christ, the spiritual idea of divine Love. We acknowledge Jesus' atonement as the evidence of divine efficacious Love, unfolding man's unity with God through Christ Jesus the Way-shower; and we acknowledge that man is saved through Christ, through Truth, Life, and Love as demonstrated by the Galilean Prophet in healing the sick and overcoming sin and death. . . . Jesus aided in reconciling man to God by giving man a truer sense of Love, the divine Principle of Jesus' teachings, and this truer sense of Love redeems man from the law of matter, sin, and death by the law of Spirit—the law of divine Love" (pp. 38, 497, 19).

The bond is in memory of the late President Franklin Delano Roosevelt. It will be on sale at all agencies authorized to issue United States Savings Bonds of Series E.

The bond will be in the denomination of $200, to be issued at $150. It will constitute an additional denomination of Series E Bonds, and will have the same terms and attributes as other denominations. It will carry a likeness of Mr. Roosevelt.

Can Corn Fresh and a Little At a Time for Good Results

Corn is a stumbling block for many an otherwise successful home canner. For some it spoils; for others it turns brown and has poor flavor.

Gladys Kimbrough, Home Service Director for Ball Brothers

Company, glass jar company with headquarters at Muncie, Indiana, considers it far from easy to persuade the general public to adopt practices and procedures which give satisfactory results.

If you have never canned corn but want to this season because of rationing, or if you have tried and failed, you may profit by following Miss Kimbrough's advice. In an informal discussion of the subject she said, "Sweet corn, particularly the deep yellow, is rich in flavor and food value, but field corn cans as well, keeps as well, as the garden varieties and is the preference of many persons who could, if they chose, grow a patch of sweet corn for table use. So, take your choice but don't pay your money unless you know the corn is fresh from the stalk and that it is at the most perfect stage for table use. At this stage the kernels are plump, shiny, and all but bursting with milk-like juice."

Can Corn Early

As corn matures, the milk gives way to a substance called dough. Then people say the corn is too hard and they say right because it is hard to keep it by canning once it has passed from the full milk to the dough stage.

Bacteria, particularly those which cause flat sour, like warm corn. This is one big reason why it doesn't pay to gather, prepare, and can corn by the "wagon load." Flavor is another good reason for the can-a-little-at-a-time rule. Corn loses its sweetness more rapidly than any other vegetable with the possible exception of green peas. This fact, plus bacteria's special liking for corn which has stood several hours, explains the wisdom of the old slogan, "Two hours from garden to canner."

Jars, caps, lids, rubbers, canner and all other utensils needed should be ready for use when the corn is brought in for canning.

It is a waste of time, energy, and food to put anything in a jar which can't be sealed airtight. The smallest nick or crack can cause trouble, so smart home canners take time to examine the sealing surface of every jar and lid. Jars, caps, glass lids and rubbers should be washed in warm soapy water, rinsed, covered with warm water and then boiled. One can't be too clean about canning. Used jars, caps, and lids should be boiled 20 to 30 minutes. New ones need only be brought to boiling and kept hot.

Any jar, cap, lid, and rubber worth using is worth using by the manufacturer's instructions. Such instructions are given on a circular packed with the jars and printed on the cap cartons.

Two sharp knives are needed—one small, one large. And you will want a cutting board. A well scrubbed plank will do if you have nothing better.

When everything is ready lay an ear of corn on the board, then use the strong knife to cut through husks, corn and cob at each end of the ear. Next, stand the ear upright and use both hands to peel off the husks. If eased along with the thumb, most of the silks will come off with the wrappings. This method may sound troublesome, but after you get the hang of it you will find the work goes faster and with much less mess than when the husking is done in the usual way.

Discard any ear of corn which seems a bit hard. Rinse and drain the corn after it has been freed of silks, then cut—don't saw—the kernels from the cob, taking care not to cut the cob. This is where you need that small sharp knife.

The danger of spoilage is far less when whole kernels are used. Cream style is made by slicing the tips of the kernels and then scraping out the pulp. It is folly to can cream style unless one has a steam pressure cooker with an accurate gauge.

Pint size jars are best for any kind of corn and practically a must for cream style, because heat passes through corn slowly.

It doesn't do to keep corn waiting its turn in the canner. If you happen to have some left over because of faulty judgment in estimating the amount needed to fill the jars, put it in the refrigerator to keep cool until the next batch can go into the canner.

Adding Water Essential

Be sure to add one and one-quarter cup boiling water to each four cups of whole kernel corn and two cups of boiling water to each four of cream style. The water is needed to help the heat get through the corn in a hurry and to prevent the corn turning brown. That brown color and overcooked flavor you dislike is caused by caramelization of the corn sugar. This doesn't happen when the corn is young and juicy, enough water is used, and the processing done at the right temperature.

Most persons like about one-half teaspoon of salt to each pint of corn. A little sugar won't hurt anything, nor will it hurt if you forget the salt. The amount used is too small to help prevent spoilage.

Some persons manage to can corn by processing it three and a half to four hours in a hot-water bath canner but it is far better to use a steam pressure cooker provided it is in the right working order and worked right. That last "right" means Follow the Manufacturer's Instructions!

Overpopulation Problem For Fertile Cebu Island

Cebu island, taken by Yank forces, has several distinctions besides its rank as ninth in size among the 7,000-odd islands of the Philippine chain, says the National Geographic society. Its chief town, Cebu, was built on the site of the first Spanish settlement in the islands, and served as capital of Spain's new territory from 1565 to 1571. Including its related islands, Cebu, before the present war, constituted the most crowded province in the Philippines.

Lying between the islands of Bohol and Leyte on the east, and Negros on the west, Cebu stretches its 120-mile length from the Mindanao sea on the south to the Visayan sea on the north. Greatest width is about 20 miles. The area is a little less than that of Delaware. Provincial administration extended to many near-by islands, among them the Camotes group to the east, Mactan off the east coast, and Bantayan, lying to the northwest. Total provincial population was about 1,068,000.

Fertile valleys yielded tobacco, sugar, cotton, rice and abaca (so-called "Manila hemp"). Coconut groves fringe the shores. Despite good soil and mild climate, Cebu was rated a "poor" island, and its people found living difficult. Thousands went to neighboring Negros for seasonal jobs in the cane fields and sugar mills. Migration of land settlers to Mindanao island was aided by the government.

Chief items entering trade were abaca fiber, cotton fabrics, sugar, pottery, and native wines. Sponge fishing was important. Roads skirt the east and west coasts, and serve as trans-island links. A railway connected the city of Cebu with east coast communities.

New Way to Treat Post Poles With Chemicals

Scientists of the U. S. department of agriculture have developed a method by which farmers and other users of wood-lot trees can introduce chemicals into the sap stream of the wood to increase the length of service of fence posts, bean poles, garden stakes, and other utility poles.

The method is neither difficult nor expensive to use. The fresh-cut saplings are simply allowed to stand in a wooden tub or trough containing the right amount of chromated zinc chloride, zinc chloride or copper sulfate (bluestone) in solution,

Home Working Conditions Should Be Comfortable

Do you use your energy and muscles correctly? Are your working surfaces the right height so you don't bend over them as you work? Sink, ironing board, washboard and tub? You can raise the level of the dishpan by standing it on a varnished or painted rack or inverted pan in the sink. You can put blocks under the legs of the table, and make a stand for a portable wash-tub. You can adjust most folding ironing boards to suit the comfort of the person who irons. In some cases stationary washtubs can be raised. All such changes make your work easier and cut down fatigue.

Do you have good light and ventilation where you work? If you don't, you will feel more tired at the end of the day. A room that is too hot or too cold or noisy may tire you when you work in it. If your tired state is due to long working hours, it will pay you to shorten the time for each task if you possibly can. Have you studied your various jobs to reduce the time for doing them and the number of arm motions made and steps taken? Do you wear suitable clothing for work? A plain, short, washable dress, or a coverall apron, or slacks, and low-heeled shoes? So little a thing as a slipping shoulder strap or your underwear may tire you. Use shoulder tapes and be free of this constant and tiring annoyance.

Clutter and disorder around you while you work make you feel tired, even if you don't realize it. See whether you have good work centers for each kind of job, so arranged that you can route your work to save steps. Make a list of the tools you need in each center. Then get into the habit of putting each tool back in place after you use it, and don't let articles that have nothing to do with the job remain where you are working. For example, leaving the ironing board and iron around when you're finished with them. Keep the floor clear to avoid having to shift things out of your way.

Qualifications for Army Commissions

The typical young midwesterner with a college education has had a 50-50 chance of becoming a commissioned officer, while men with no more than a high school education have had the same chance of becoming sergeants but only one chance in four of being commissioned.

Dramatically Styled Furs Have Look of Luxury and Distinction

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THIS is a season of fabulous furs, distinguished by dramatic styling. It would seem almost as if miracles are being performed in fur manipulation. The regulation coats of the past, designed for the most part to keep you warm, are no more. A new era dawns in fur coat design, one that is breath-taking in luxuriousness, in top-flight styling, in assured winter warmth and in all the finesses that women of fashion seek in fur coats.

Never a lovelier evening wrap could fancy picture than the exquisite stole of precious white Russian ermine shown in the magnificent fur revue presented recently in Chicago by the State street council. Note in the illustration herewith the superb grace and beauty of this enchanting evening wrap. The full deep cape at the back flows into wide front panels, which are heavily tipped with ermine tails. It is in such gracious modes as this that fur artistry reaches the ultimate.

The handsome coat illustrated at the right was also in the showing. This sumptuous model in black Russian Persian lamb brings a most important message in that it is high style this season to trim one fur with the same fur in striking color contrast. In this instance, natural gray Persian lamb is used in banded treatment about the wide bell sleeves of this very elegant black Persian coat. There is also a trend this season to trim one fur with another.

As to the kinds and types of fur in the fall and winter fashion picture, the list of fine peltry is most versatile. Coats of opossum, mouton, muskrat, raccoon, nutria and natural leopard have the look college girls want. Beaver is also high in favor and gray furs are very popular. The new "rage" among the younger set is daytime coats of white fur. Street furs stress mink of every type, which tunes right into the "brown" vogue that is sweeping the country. Mink-dyed muskrat makes a good showing too, while Persian lamb is a stand-by with women who like elegance without ostentation. Beaver has high fashion rank this season, and quite a little natural squirrel and seal are on the list.

The gorgeousness of evening furs baffles description. Rare platinum mink expresses luxury at its highest. Blond mink is charming and new looking. Fine black Persian lamb remains first choice with women of conservative tastes. Lovely white ermine, too, is scheduled for a busy social season. As to the dramatic coat silhouettes, they radiate a feeling of opulence as much as do the magnificent furs themselves, in that this season's coats are cut in such lavish lines as shown in the huge graceful sleeves with their wide and luxurious turn-back cuffs. There's grace and beauty too, in the generously-cut coat itself which often stresses a flare hemline. And as to lengths, it's the shorter types that major in the style parade. However, the full length models are not out of the picture. A smart model shown is a full length opossum sports coat.

Smart Costume Suit

It's big news that the costume suit has returned to the fashion picture. The new note of elegance that prevails in current fashions is reflected in the revival of the old-time favorite that calls for a handsome two-piece done in quality-kind wool and choice fur trim with the thought in mind that it will, together with a wardrobe of intriguing blouses and various costume jackets and bodice tops of rich fabric plus versatile accessories, sum up to almost a wardrobe in itself. The good looking fine wool costume suit pictured, selected from a collection by Chicago Fashion industries, declares in favor of the new fitted tunic-coat version.

You'll Need Plenty of Jackets and Skirts

A big vogue is on for the jacket and skirt costume. The fashion, besides being a most practical one, offers endless possibilities for a variety of costumes from the mix and match viewpoint. Something different this year in way of a fashionable skirt is the new wrap-around that comes in black, also in stunning bright colors. You get the jacket in a smart color contrast, orange with black, Mexican pink jacket with brown skirt, and so on. The blazer jacket is "tops" for practical wear, and the college girl buys this type first of all. Jackets in bizarre plaids or stripes vie with those made of plain fabric that play up one vivid color against another. The exciting new jacket theme this year is seen in the new corduroy models in either narrow or wide wale. Their colorings are most attractive. New also are handsome little velvet jackets. The jacket and skirt costume is highly important.

Fabric Squares Are Used In Many Versatile Ways

You might like to know that you can buy patterns especially designed for making the beautiful fabric squares so popular this season into stunning blouses, skirts and a host of other items that will add to the glory of your wardrobe. It's amazing what you can do with these glamour scarves. There's real excitement in a gay dirndl skirt which you have made out of two colorful printed squares. Once you have begun you will want to keep on creating smart dress accents such as a charming blouse, contrast sleeves for a dress that needs uplift, and so on. You'll want to learn dozens of ways to use these squares and the instructions that accompany the patterns will help you to do just that.

MRS. ALLEN'S HUSBAND GIVES HER A SURPRISE

WEST MONROE, LA.—Mrs. Carl C. Allen of West Monroe, Louisiana, has an interesting story to tell about how she discovered Faultless Starch. Here is what she wrote:

"Last week my husband brought home a box of Faultless Starch. I decided to use it, thinking that all starches were about the same. You can imagine my surprise when I began ironing. My iron fairly flew and I was finished in no time. My clothes were so bright, with no rough starch blotches to mar their sleekness. I felt I just had to tell you how wonderful your starch is. My husband was just as proud as I when he saw his shirts. I wish all women could just try your product."

Now there is a thoughtful husband. That box of Faultless Starch really meant more to Mrs. Allen than a box of candy—and here is why:

SAVE 468 MINUTES A YEAR
Let's say it takes ten minutes to make hot starch when you have to cook it and stir it over a hot stove. But you can make hot Faultless Starch in a minute. That means you save nine minutes each time you make it. If you wash only once a week, in one year you would save 468 minutes, or seven hours and forty minutes. Would you rather have a box of candy or a box of starch that saved you better than seven hours a year?

SAVE 26 HOURS A YEAR
And that isn't all! Many people tell us that Faultless Starch makes it possible to save half their ironing time. Let's be conservative and say that Faultless Starch might save you half an hour each ironing day. In a year you would save twenty-six hours of hard ironing time! Which is best—a box of candy or a box of Faultless Starch? Why go on starching and ironing the hard way when you can do it the easy way with Faultless Starch. Or, better still, ask your grocer for a box today. You deserve Faultless Starch, too.—Adv.

When Your Back Hurts -

And Your Strength and Energy Is Below Par
It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood. You may suffer nagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with smarting and burning is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder. There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won countrywide approval than on something less favorably known. Our Service Men--At Home and Abroad

On the USS Alaska in the Pacific, Emanuel Greco, 18, seaman second class, USNR, Tinley Park, served on this battle cruiser when, as part of a task force of more than 50 ships, she steamed into Jinsen, Korea, Sept. 8 to help occupy and liberate the country from the Japanese.

About 15,000 American sailors and soldiers steamed ashore to occupy the capital city of Keijo, 23 miles away, to the cheers of the natives. A crowd estimated at 100,000 gathered in the vicinity of the capitol to watch the lowering of the Jap flag and the raising of the Stars and Stripes.

Thousands of American prisoners of war, many listed missing, were assembled, identified and headed for home where they trained for five more months. Here they got their equipment and Fred was assigned as a prime mover driver, and then he pulled a 155 m.m. Howitzer. There were 120 vehicles to a battalion and with this equipment all assembled, they started on a 30 mile jaunt to Cardiff, Wales where they trained five more months. While here Gen. Eisenhower viewed this group and talked to the men.

Leaving Cardiff, they drove, and Fred pulled the 155 m.m. Howitzer, to Tidworth, England, 100 miles, making it in 12 hours. Here they remained six weeks for further training and waiting for shipment to France. It was July 23, 1944 they sailed on a LST, and landed in Normandy Beach and drove in five miles where they bivouacked for five days preparing to take a position on the firing line. This they did by driving five more miles when Fred pulled up his Howitzer and then drove back and forth with supplies of ammunition. This combat army pressed forward constantly until they finally reached the Ziegfried line, on August 30, going to this line, they drove thru Luxembourg, Reims and marched thru Paris on Aug. 25th. Here he met for a passing glance Arrian Yunker of Orland Park. They circled back to the 1st army front near Aachen, Germany where for six weeks they were in battle and after overcoming the Nazis, and taking many prisoners, they moved again when they took part in the Belgium Bulge on Dec. 16, 1944. They stayed there until January 1945 when they drove to southern France to the Colmar pocket and cleared out the Nazis there in just three weeks. Although they met stiff resistance they did not lose a single man, the Allies having the advantage of larger number of troops and equipment.

Leaving Colmar pocket, they joined the right flank and marched thru a large area all leveled and burned. On thru Renegan, Germany, crossed the Rhine river and on into Germany for 100 miles. The bridge on which they crossed the Rhine, collapsed finally under the numerous heavy weight of men and vehicles. We recall reading of this incident in our papers at that time, and many of us wondered if their boys were on it.

Onward they pressed, next joining the 15th army and returned north to Cologne, which was all leveled, on into Dusseldorf and fired in the central Europe battle.

It was during these many battles, all this time Fred was delivering the Howitzer, and then ammunition hauling several tons at a time, that he had a slight accident, which could have been very serious. They were pulling loads of ammunition, going down a hill when Fred lost control of his truck which had a heavily loaded trailer behind. He bumped into the truck ahead of him, as he pulled off the road as much as possible to avoid hitting too squarely the head truck, and in some way injured his right hand, breaking four bones. No damage was done to the trucks.

The relief driver took over and Fred was taken by ambulance to Bonn, Germany, then by train to Liege, Belgium to the 16th general hospital, where the bones were set and where he stayed for five weeks. He returned to his outfit which was near Saarbrücken, Germany which was half leveled, and again drove his truck, this time hauling supplies for the Polish camps, food clothing and as much as was available of necessities. Fred joined the VE celebration at Liege, Belgium.

And now that the battles were silenced, it was Fred's good privilege to go to Camp Pittsburg, near Reims, in France for a 10 day stay, then to Camp Old Gold near LaHarve for ten more days and then on July 28, 1945 on the good old USS Excelsior with 3000 other men they sailed for home, landing at Boston August 4 where a welcome was given them. Next to Camp Miles Standish then to Camp Grant and home, to little old Mokena, on August 7 to "the garden spot of the world", is the way Fred put it.

It was October 5 that Fred received his honorable discharge at Camp Grant, having 83 points. He wore the ETO ribbon with five stars, good conduct ribbon, the Keystone patch of the 28th Division; three overseas stripes and one hash mark. After three years in the Service, it is good to be citizen Fred Clark again, and he will also be glad when he is back at his old job of Railroad Express Messenger on trains working out of Chicago. We wish him luck and pleasant traveling.

Sgt. Holwedel Returns From Overseas

After training fourteen months in this country after enlisting on June 30, 1942, Sgt. Helmut Holwedel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Holwedel of Tinley Park, sailed Sept. 5, 1943, on the British HMS O'Ryan for overseas.

There were 7000 on board the O'Ryan and they landed at Grenish, Scotland, Sept. 14. Entraining, they were taken to Royston, England where "Hal" as he signs himself, flew combat for ten months. Flying combat, was repairing the airplanes and keeping them flying. Later in 1944 they went to Colchester, England remained there with the RAF until July, 1945 when they flew to Munich, Germany for occupational patrol.

By this time the Allies were in control of Germany and to make it easier for our men to handle the Germans, Helmut, who speaks German and understands it very well, was chosen to teach the language. For two months he taught classes of officers and enlisted men, at the end of which period they were able to carry on a conversation, give orders etc. to the German people.

Hal flew back to England, and sailed on the U. S. Lincoln Steffen from Liverpool, on Sept. 22 and landed in the good old USA at Boston, Oct. 8. As soon as was possible he telephoned his parents in Tinley Park of his arrival which made all most happy.

Hal and ship's troops were taken to Camp Miles Standish, then to Camp McCoy, Wis. where he received his honorable discharge. And Oct. 14, 1945 is a day never to be forgotten, for on that day, he arrived in Tinley Park, home to stay, having had more than enough of the European countries.

Sgt. Holwedel wears the ETO ribbon with five stars, Good Conduct medal, Presidential Citation and the RAF badge.

Fred Clark Relates War Experiences

This one is different, they're all different—that's why it is so interesting to talk to each of our boys when they come home. We had such a nice visit with Cpl. Frederick Clark recently, even tho he would rather talk about something else than battles, rations, etc.

Fred who is 23 is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Clark of Mokena, who was inducted into the Service Sept. 11, 1942 and trained with the 28th division of the 108th Field Artillery in this country for 13 months. There were 4000 on the USS Santa Rosa and Fred was one of them, when that ship sailed from Boston on Oct. 8, 1943. They landed at Swanson, Wales Oct. 18 and Fred was one of the 500 of the 108th who went by train to a camp 5 miles distance

First Auto Race Run at Chicago On Thanksgiving 1895

The first automobile race held in the United States was run at Chicago in 1895, just fifty years ago. The day was Thanksgiving, the hour was 8 A. M. and the ground was covered with several inches of snow. The contest, sponsored by Mr. H. H. Kohlsaat, publisher of the Chicago Times-Herald, started from a point near the building that now houses the Museum of Science and Industry and ran to Evanston and return, a distance of about fifty four and a half miles. Six horseless carriages arrived at the starting point; two of them finished the course.

On Thanksgiving Day of this year, Chicagoans will see a re-enactment of that early run, an event that focused the attention of the American public and of the manufacturer on the possibilities of the motor driven vehicle. The Museum of Science and Industry will re-create the race using cars of the same type to impersonate the original entries. The re-run will form the first section of the Parade of Cars staged by the Museum to illustrate the development of the automobile from the horseless carriage era to the present day. This parade will mark the climax of a month long exhibition and series of events that the Museum will hold in commemoration of fifty years progress in the automotive field and in tribute to the pioneer inventors.

Major Lenox R. Lohr, president of the Museum said today:

"The Museum of Science and Industry is happy to announce that Mr. J. Frank Duryea who drove the winning car in the 1895 contest will drive a Duryea 1896 model in the re-run of America's first automobile race on Thanksgiving Day of this year. Mr. Duryea, long associated with the automobile field, has had the Duryea 1896 put in running order and will bring it to Chicago to re-live with it and in it, the story of his early success.

"Another participant in the 1895 event who will be present in the Museum's re-run will be Mr. Chas. B. King, who acted as umpire for the Mueller-Benz car that came in second, eleven minutes after the winner, in the 1895 race. During that eventful day Oscar Mueller who was driving the H. Mueller and Sons entry on its return from Evanston became exhausted and Mr. King it was who brought the car into second place."

The Museum's parade of cars will leave the Museum of Science and Industry at 9 a. m. on Thanksgiving Day, November 22, and will follow the course laid out for 1895 event.

Off the Runway

Civil Air Patrol, Squadron 613-3
by 2nd Lt. Erlyne Conel

Flying Fit for a Queen! Twenty four queens, each accompanied, fed and cared for, by her workers, recently took a trans-Atlantic airplane journey. They all travelled together in a nine inch square crate. In case you're wondering—they were Queen bees, being sent across the ocean to put the war ravaged French bee business back on the wing and buzzing again. I imagine the French greeted the Queens by saying "Hyah Honey!"

Ty Barnes Cassidy. This Saturday I visited Ingalls Memorial hospital. Just one week after Ty's plane accident at the Air Show of Sunday, October 14. It was great to see that her facial scratches are disappearing fast, and that Ty is going to be beautiful as always. She's rarin' to get back to instructing her students. They're rarin' for Ty to get back, too. For from what I've seen of her flying, its perfection, PLUS.

A show of Personalities! The CAP

Air Show was honored by the presence of Col. Larius Eek, Army Air Force Commander of the 6th Service Command, and by Major Gordon DeCosta, Commander of the CAP Illinois wing. In a pleasant chat with Major DeCosta he fairly beamed good CAP news. He said, "The Air Power League is backing CAP. Illinois has the third largest Wing in the country with 4500 Cadets and 8,000 Senior members. In addition, 12 new Flights are now starting, and the two Chicago Groups recently received an Army PT 17 airplane." The Major, a University of Illinois graduate and a former member of the faculty, had news about aviation in general, too. He spoke of the New University of Illinois 772 acre Airport opening at Urbana-Champaign on October 26. A two hour Air show with Army and Navy jets will start at 12:30 pm. The airport is to heighten a rapidly expanding educational and research program at the University. It will also be used for Private and Commercial flying. Maitland Field, Milwaukee, Wis. Both new airports should make keen cross.

By the highways, another new airport was scheduled to open October 24, country hops.

Among the well known local folks enjoying the air show were Mayor Arthur Truhgoren of Harvey and Mrs. Wm. Semmler and daughters, family of the Tinley Park Times Editor.

Skywork ala Rubinkam: I can't help raising the typewriter keys up to say a few words about the rousing good Air Show flying of Rubinkam's instructors, Roy Cleveland and Ray Starpyk. Teamed with Buddy Ogden, on leave from the Army, they formed a sweet flying threesome, that almost flew the paint off the Cubs, so close was their formation. Any student in the process of doing take offs and bounces could well envy their precision one wheel landings, and Chinese (one wing low) taxiing all over the field. Their spins loops, most everything possible to be done in a Cub gave the show a star act! And may it be said Roy and Ray are as good instructing students, as they are in putting on a good show.

Howell Airport. Norman Lauffer, a student pilot, and Alvin Roemer, both of Tinley Park are learning about motors at the Chicago Vocational school.

Chicago Hammond Airport: Taxiing in on the field, I was met by Lois Zelazky (Zeke) the line gal. From both the grease covering her, and from reports of her flying, she's making jet progress towards her Private License. Learned that first solos in Cubs have been made by Bob Mayernik and Bob Calloway. Hank Anderson, just out of the Air Corp, is still in the air. He bought a PT 19 for himself and his wife to fly, and to bring 21 month old junior "UP" in! (Ouch.)

That's all for now.

TO THE BOYS IN SERVICE ALL
OVER THE WORLD WHO READ
THIS NEWSPAPER.

I have just learned that the friendly publisher of this newsy little home town paper, "Bill" Semmler and his hard working family, send out, absolutely free, mind you, well over Six Hundred Copies a week to you fine lads who are still scattered to the far corners of the earth.

At first glance, this doesn't seem extraordinary; but when you multiply 600 by 52 weeks, it comes to the staggering total of over Thirty Thousand Copies a year! When you realize that each copy represents a hard, round Buffalo nickel, the magnitude of this warm hearted war Effort becomes apparent. And they ask no reward for their kindly and generous thoughtfulness, other than you may find a few moments of relaxation and happiness by thus keeping in touch, close touch, with loved and well remembered things at Home.

A few weeks ago you may have read a feature article they ran about the "Hollywood Elderlovelies", a group of "Gallopin' Grandmas" featured with Ken Murray's fabulous "Blackouts of 1945" at the El Capitan Theatre in Hollywood.

Each one of his acts has appeared at the famous Hollywood Canteen, and I'm wondering how many of you who are reading this, have seen our act? We "Elderlovelies" appeared there six times, and every time it was jammed to the doors with Service Men from everywhere, with grinning boys even sitting on the edge of the stage itself, and their shining eyes served us far better than any "footlights" we had ever seen, so bright were they with wonder, delight and enthusiasm.

You boys were the most wonderful and appreciative audience in the world, and while we worked with such show-stopping stars as Bob Hope, Jerry Colona, Hugh Herbert, Bette Davis, Edgar Bergen, Ann Shirley, Charles Coburn, Roy Rogers, Joe E. Brown and dozens more, you gave US the same hearty welcome that you did THEM.

The last time we worked there, we were on the bill with Jimmy Durante, Shirley Temple and Rudy Vallee. You know what Jimmy Durante can do to an audience, he just ties up a show and walks away with it; so, we were worried about how you would look at US, a group of snowy haired old ladies. But our fears were soon dispelled; we came on in a dead silence, because we really were the "surprise element", and we could tell from your perplexed faces that you wondered what in the heck WE were "gonna do". But as we started to sing that old favorite, "Darling I am Growing Old", and you looked from one little old "Gramma" to the next, I think, and I hope, that we reminded you a bit of your "Little Old Lady" at home. I do know that lot of youthful eyes grew suddenly misty, and it wasn't California fog either, then, when we started into "Swing and Jitterbug" your sudden laughter rippled like waves upon the sea and turned to the deafening roar of Niagara!

We made you happy, and you gave us the thrill of our lives by your terrific reception of our act. You did that each time, bless your hearts! And oh how we wanted to come out there and give each one of you a big hug and a quick word of whispered courage before you went across.

Our manager, Ken Murray, the producer, director and star of our show, "Blackouts", often taken his entire cast to the nearby hospitals. There again we met many of you as we played in the Government Theatres and later entertained for the boys in the wards who were unable to attend the show. As we sang and kidded with them, many would cling to our hands as we said goodbye and whisper, "Gee lady, you sure remind me of Moms, come back again soon, woncha?" And we always do.

If Mr. Murray only knows about it in time, NO service lad need ever go away disappointed because he couldn't get tickets to see his sensational "Blackouts". Just outside his dressing room there's a long bench where he lets them sit in the wings and watch the Revue at close range, thrilling to real close ups of Mr. Murray's inimitable humor, the Glamor lovelies, clean limbed loveliness, the breath taking beauty of gorgeous Marie Wilson, the masterly technique of that truly great concert violinist, Jan Rubini, whose months of playing for the boys in the Pacific Islands was ranked as on a par with Hope and Jack Benny as amoral builder. These and a score or more of equally talented artists they can actually see and almost touch from their special "box seat".

So, when you boys stop off here on your way home, if you can't get reservations to see this most talked about production in the Nation, you just come backstage and ask to see the old Grandma who is writing this, and I'll get permission from our grand "Boss" to let you backstage.

To those who saw us at the Canteen and have so gallantly answered the Last Roll Call, I silently stand at attention, a fervent prayer upon my lips. To you other wonderful lads, wherever you may be, let me repeat what I said at the Canteen, six times, "When you think of us Elderlovelies, I hope that we will have made you think of Mother, of Home and of God!"

Sincerely and lovingly yours,
Mabel Hart

Prairie Farmers' View
On Better Schools

Prairie Farmer believes the vast majority of Illinois school board members will vote in favor of a county survey IF IT IS PLAIN WHAT THEY ARE VOTING FOR.

The eyes of the rural education world are on the more than 40,000 board members. What is proposed here is a broad, democratic, people's movement. If Illinois succeeds, it will show the way to other states; Michigan, for example, with its 5,000 one-room school houses, and Wisconsin with 4,860. Like Illinois, these states face major decisions.

It is vitally important that board members know exactly what the school survey plan is.

They should know about it before they go to the meeting, which the county superintendent must call before Dec. 1. Once at the meeting, the issues may become confused unless the board members know the facts.

They will be asked to vote "yes" or "no" on whether their county should establish a survey committee.

The powers of the committee are to study the school districts, recommend reorganizations, hold public hearings, make reports, and prepare maps. Expenses are to be paid by the state.

The essential fact is this—board members will merely vote "yes" or "no" on whether a survey should be made.

They will NOT vote for or against reorganization. This privilege is reserved for the people in case a reorganization plan is made by the committee.

So what is a "yes" vote at the meeting of school board members? It is a vote in favor of a survey of the county's school system to be made at no expense to the county. In effect, a "yes" vote says, "I favor letting the people decide on a school reorganization."

What would a "no" vote be? It would be a vote against a study of the county's schools.

It seems to Prairie Farmer that school board members are almost duty bound to vote "yes". Some may have strong convictions against reorganization and be tempted to vote "no" against even the survey. But the people have the right to express themselves.

Rural education is at the crossroads in Illinois. Maybe the state is to have larger schools. Maybe the one room school is to be improved. In either case, the logical first step is the county survey, followed by an election.

Then the air will be cleared, issues will be resolved, and county by county Illinois can move forward in the interests of our boys and girls.
